Coach Tom Richardson returns home to Indiana after being named in top 8 speakers in the world

At 77 years of age and still living full throttle, Richardson practices every single bit of what he preaches, from eating healthy and committing to exercise to reserving time for community service to approaching every challenge with optimism.

As a native of Tennessee, Richardson played football and graduated from the University of Tennessee. At Vanderbilt University, he added a master's degree to his education and started adulthood as a dedicated teacher and high school football coach.

Even after all these years, that is still exactly who he is, Richardson said. “I’m just a teacher and a coach.”

These days, the classrooms include high school and college athletes and coaches, parents, team building employers and owners of all sizes of businesses.

When many seniors reach their 60s and begin to “level off,” they might wrongly see themselves as “finished,” Richardson said. “They might think, ’Well, I can’t do anything else.’”

Clearly, that is not this man’s outlook on life.

“I believe all of us have the ability to continue on and do all kinds of things,” he said. “You can continue to grow physically, socially, spiritually, intellectually. There is no finish line.”

Tom “Coach Tom” Richardson recently grabbed the red-eye back to Indiana after providing training for a couple of days in Los Angeles.

Scheduling life around that infamous flight didn’t phase this guy. Long before the sun officially starts each morning, Richardson’s day is already in full swing.

“I have a routine to get my day going,” he said. “But it starts with reading devotionals.”

Named by Toastmasters International as one of the top eight speakers in the world, Richardson has a stellar reputation as an amazing business coach, spokesperson and trainer. He speaks across Indiana, Southside included. He is also quite the athlete, practices Martial Arts and holds the World Record in Competitive Power Lifting for his age bracket. At least four times a week, this busy guy works out in a couple of different gyms. He is an avid reader as well as an author. He owns Richardson Communication and co-owns Synergy Training. Along with this long list of passions and accomplishments, Richardson is a devoted husband, father of five and grandpa of eight.

And oh yeah, he is only three years shy of celebrating his 80th birthday. That’s right.

Greenwood’s Quinton Moore and Adam Hirt start Be Your Own Hero organization to offer positive experiences and lessons to area youth

By Nicole Davis

When Quinton Moore and Adam Hirt began holding games and events for children in their Greenwood neighborhood, they say it filled a need in their community and was such a positive experience that they decided to expand it. They created Be Your Own Hero, an organization which for children to come for free, learning teamwork and self-confidence.

“It’s something so good; we can’t keep it to ourselves,” Moore said. “I would say the need here is greater than some people realize. For those kids who sit at home and sit on their XBoxes, that’s no good way for a kid to grow up... We noticed some of our teens are getting into some bad stuff. We’re hoping to put a small dent in Greenwood. We’re hoping they have a place they can go and not be judged, to push them in the right direction.”

Moore said he has experience coaching at places such as Mount Pleasant and Greenwood Christian church, and he’s seen that parents want more places to send their kids where they will be safe. Knowing not everyone has the money to place their children in activities, Moore and Hirt have made their events remain free, with items needed funded by donations. They set up an account at gofundme.com and will begin to host community fundraisers on June 18 with a fundraising night at Applebees. On June 21, Moore, Hirt and children involved will have a car was at Donatos in Greenwood from 9 a.m. – 2 p.m. “We have begun the process to be funded by donations,” Moore said. “We want them to feel like it’s their organization, however big or little it is. We want them to see what hard work does for you. Right now, our motto is ‘be part of the change.’ We are focusing on helping kids make better life choices, teaching them to lead a better lifestyle with different events.”

Approximately 15-20 kids have attended the activities that have been held in the last couple of months, playing games such as duck, duck, goose, Frisbee, flag football and having a water balloon fight. They plan to hold the events the first Saturday of each month, from noon to 3, but that will be changed for July, to July 19th, to July 4th holiday. Each youth participant will receive a free t-shirt with the organization’s logo on it. Those shirts and some bracelets are also being sold to raise money. Moore said once they get established enough, they’d like to have different groups for different ages, to make all the children feel comfortable at the events.

“Our ultimate goal is to get parents to volunteer, to get businesses to donate to us,” Moore said. “We’re very close to getting a 501c3. We for sure want our own building so it will be secure and safe, people will know where we’re at. We can create a calendar for a year.”

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

The marriage ended and my mom was alone in a home much too large for just one. Even with her family very near my mother chose to transition into a self-reliant mode and did very well at it. For all appearances she was completely at peace. She transformed her home and lifestyle into a place of her own choosing. For the first time in her life she had only herself to please. Her home became her showcase and a reflection of her personality. Weekly she would be found on her riding mower cutting an almost acre of yard, weeding and trimming. Visits from the family produced long sessions in the kitchen turning out multi-course Kentucky meals. These were the things that, while exhausting, made her happy!

A new cycle in my mother’s life had fallen off and she would continue to be. 2009eral acceptance that all had grown well in the world and would continue to be. 2009 changed all that.

Mom contracted a case of spinal meningitis. Thinking it was just the flu she dosed herself with over the counter medications and tried to heal herself. She was the stubborn one...no doctor for her! I see where I get that same mindset. She collapsed in the sun-room of her house—alone—until the next day when she was found by her sister. She went into a coma and the local hospital soon realized they were out of their league and shipped her to the UK Hospital in Lexington. After a week of touch and go she gradually came out of it, until she had a deliberating stroke that totally incapacitated her and changed the course of her life.

I put her into a nursing home in Columbia, Kentucky (my Aunt Jackie was a nurse there and I figured it would be good to have family on the premises to watch over her and provide that special touch). Nevertheless, her condition worsened, rehabilitation was going nowhere, and she would never again walk, cook a meal, drive, shop or cut her grass. She had become a prisoner of her own body. I brought her home.

We transformed the sun-room into “her” room, complete with a motorized elevating bed, lift and reclining chair. My sister-in-law Lynn moved from Florida to become her full time caretaker. We anticipated a short term arrangement, yet mom seemed to improve in this home environment.

On a personal note… Part 3
I'm real proud of my kids. I have three. I was very fortunate to be a part of a couple others. There were always teachers, people to me, like Don Challis, and I can name many blessed with great teachers that were mentors great education there... I think that I was really teachers through sixth grade. I feel like I had aing baseball in the little league. I can name myid memories of those days, growing up play schools from first grade on. I have such vivid memories of those days, growing up playing baseball in the little league. I can name my teachers through sixth grade. I feel like I had a great education there... I think that I was really blessed with great teachers that were mentors to me, like Don Challis, and I can name many others. There were always teachers, people that saw something in me that maybe I didn't see that gave me confidence that I could do what I desired to do or set my mind to do. I still have a debt of gratitude to those that believed in me. Lloyd Wright... Lloyd Wright still has vivid memories of growing up in Beech Grove, near the Holy Name Parish and St. Francis Hospital - memories like getting to go out to lunch on Main Street as a fifth grader or working at the parks department in high school under director Don Challis. Now, Wright is celebrating his 25th year as President and CEO of WFYI in Indianapolis and has been named the Beech Grove Alumni of the Year.

“To think 40 years or so later, to be recognized by that school for the accomplishments that I’ve had is a real honor,” Wright said. “I’m humbled by that and know that there are a lot of deserving people around the world that graduated from Beech Grove.”

In addition to his work in the parks department, during his time in the Beech Grove school system Wright participated in baseball and basketball there along with activities such as writing a column titled Answer the Wright Way for Beech Leaf, the high school newspaper.

“That expression that it takes a village – Beech Grove was sort of a self-contained village where everyone was taking care of one another,” Wright said. “I went to Beech Grove schools from first grade on. I have such vivid memories of those days, growing up playing baseball in the little league. I can name my teachers through sixth grade. I feel like I had a great education there... I think that I was really blessed with great teachers that were mentors to me, like Don Challis, and I can name many others. There were always teachers, people that saw something in me that maybe I didn’t see that gave me confidence that I could do what I desired to do or set my mind to do. I still have a debt of gratitude towards those that believed in me.”

Wright went on to graduate from Indiana University Bloomington in 1976 and was interested in TV production. After taking a couple of jobs in relation to production, he had an opportunity to move to Chicago to work for its PBS station. He was there six years when he got the opportunity to serve as the organization’s executive producer in Indianapolis. One year later, the President Frank Meek announced plans to retire and Wright was selected to replace him, starting June 1, 1989.

People will say or ask about being in the same job for 25 years,” Wright said. “What’s enjoyable about my work it’s been 25 years of constant change. Over time, it’s been the changes with technology and how people use technology and how people use that. The biggest was the transition from analog to digital broadcast.”

WFYI operates three TV stations and two radio stations. Wright said they are also involved in a variety of community services, serving to “amplify the voices of our community”. He said they are constantly adapting to changing needs and technology. He said shortly after he took the position as president, he participated in a 10-month program for Indianapolis leaders, teaching them all the aspects of Indianapolis. This program focused on the notion of service leadership, which he said he has taken to heart and has followed throughout his years with PBS.

“For me, public media represents a form of community development,” Wright said. “We are an interesting hybrid of a lot of media organizations but we’re different because we’re a TV station but we’re noncommercial and educational. We’re more about lifelong learning.”

Looking forward, Wright said he hopes to remain in his position with WFYI until retirement.

“It’s been an interesting time with the changes in technology,” Wright said. “We have to create content of consequence. We have to think of how long will there be over-the-air broadcasts. For WFYI, we have to be mindful of those changes so we can deliver the content in the way you need it. We’ll continue to embrace change, continue to plan ahead and trust that there will be a place for public media.”

The Beech Grove Alumni Association will hold a 38th All Alumni Reunion Celebration, an annual fundraising event during which Wright will be honored, on June 14, 6 p.m. at Primo Banquet Center, 2615 National Ave. The association’s president, Dan McMillan, says it’s their largest fundraiser, with proceeds going towards things such as scholarships and the Renaissance program. Dr. Spencer, Franklin merchants secure future of Franklin College during the Depression and war years

To the editor,

In the depth of the Great Depression in 1933, 13 million people were without jobs and could not support their families; few could afford college for their children. The enrollment at Franklin College during the worst of the Depression had decreased to such a point that the college could not afford to pay full salary to their faculty members; instead, their income was paid “in driblets,” according to Professor Emeritus Charles Deppe in his 1958 autobiography.

The trustees were considering closing the doors to the college. In an attempt to save the college, in 1933 they invited Dr. William Gear Spencer, recent president of Hillsdale College, another Baptist affiliated school in Michigan, to take the position of president of Franklin College.

Most people would have hesitated to take over the leadership of a faltering school in the midst of a severe depression. Dr. Spencer accepted the challenge with determination to succeed and enthusiasm to bring about successful solutions to the financial problems at the school. He had a plan.

First, he convinced the various merchants in Franklin to extend credit to the faculty members with “chits,” until he could raise the money to pay the professors in U.S. currency. The local merchants must have had confidence that the efforts of the new president could turn things around for the college.

Next, he started on an ambitious program of speaking engagements to American Baptist Churches in Indiana and surrounding states, urging the churches to provide scholarships to Franklin College to deserving students in their congregations. He became known for his excellent speaking ability. Soon he was in demand to speak at many high school graduation ceremonies, acquainting those graduating students with Franklin College. All of this activity resulted in more students enrolling at Franklin College, many on scholarships provided by American Baptist Churches. Finally, the college was able to pay the teachers their full salaries, and the merchants were able to receive payments for their extended credit.

Franklin College survived the Depression only to be met with another challenge when World War II began in 1941 with the bombing of Pearl Harbor by the Japanese. Soon after the declaration of war, most young men when they reached the age of 18 were drafted into service of their country. Because of the support of the Baptist Churches and the scholarships they were still giving to students, the college was able to survive the war years with many girls attending the school during the war.

Dr. Deppe wrote, “If it hasn’t been for President Spencer and his leadership through and after those trying days, there would be no Franklin College today.”

Dr. Spencer announced his retirement because of failing health on March 26, 1948.

Because of the trust and faith that the townspeople, American Baptists, and the college trustees had in 1933 in the integrity of Franklin College and Dr. Spencer, the school today under the capable leadership of President James Moseley prepares students for their careers as teachers, coaches, journalists, and many other professions.

President Moseley expressed his admiration and appreciation for President Spencer’s example of leadership during tough times. ‘All of the progress that institutions make is possible because of the wisdom and commitment of those who served before us. Every Franklin College graduate is in his debt.”

Because of the efforts of many, today Franklin College is a thriving, private liberal arts college with an enrollment of over 1,000 students and an endowment of over $84 million.

Another large investment in Beech Grove

To the editor,

This is a major investment in the City of Beech Grove. Beech Grove is now home to one of the two Kinetrex Energy distribution centers in Central Indiana for natural gas. What is even more exciting is that it is bringing more jobs to our city and the assessed valuation of our city will increase as approximately 25 million dollars could be invested in the property by the end of 2014.

The timing couldn’t be better as this is yet another piece of the puzzle that will go along way in rebuilding our beautiful city. Along with this announcement, another major event will take place as a new mill under construction at ADM goes on line. Couple this with the recent Main Street redevelopment and the beginning stages of a new senior community taking place, this all adds up to a much needed financial boost for our beloved city.

Much to do will be made by this announcement as T. Boone Pickens and Governor Pence will visit our city on June 11th and take center stage for the opening of the Kinetrex Energy facility. I couldn’t be happier for our city, school system and library as we will all benefit for years to come as a result of this process.

Respectfully Submitted,
Dennis B. Buckley

There are opportunities to restore the Madison Avenue corridor

To the editor,

I wanted to thank all of my friends and neighbors for the concerns that were demonstrated relating to the recent request to rezone the property at 1635 E. Southport Rd. to accommodate the CSL Blood Plasma Center. Through your efforts the petition to rezone this property was appropriately defeated.

It is important that we recall that over the past two plus years many in our community have been working to revitalize the Madison Avenue corridor. With the designation of the Economic Development Area earlier this year for Madison Avenue (from Morris Street to County Line Road) there are new opportunities. I believe that by working together we can attract business development and revitalization that will benefit and restore our community. We can do that by continuing to work together, expressing our ideas and concerns when necessary. We also have an opportunity going forward to work with this developer to help find a business or use that would stabilize the corner of Madison and Southport.

Our community will have an opportunity to continue those inputs by attending a Visioning and Planning Luncheon on July 23 from 11:30 am to 1:30 p.m. at the Resurrection Lutheran Church (445 E Stop 11 Rd.) This event is being sponsored and hosted by the Greater Southside Business and Community Alliance. The contact for more information is Joan Miller at 787-1300. I would encourage all to attend and continue to share your inputs.

Time to reflect on what your dad means to you

In this issue of the Southside Times, we’d like to invite you to take a minute and reflect on Father’s Day. Though we try our best to appreciate dad the whole year round, we sometimes lose track of all he’s done for us.

Of course, no two dads are alike—despite the typical fatherly stereotypes like “dad jokes,” strange fashion sense and the picturesque paternal handyman or outdoorsman, perhaps even a well-read gentleman enjoying a bit of pipe tobacco and whiskey in the den by the fireplace.

But seriously, just as no two fathers are the same—nor two mothers—we are all different despite the invisible boundaries of bloodlines. Our fathers were exactly one-half of the equation that brought us into this world, and as dads everywhere might jest, they can certainly take us out!

Take this Father’s Day as an opportunity to let the old man how much he means to you; kick off the summer with a fishing trip, catch a summer blockbuster flick, or take him out to his favorite restaurant. Maybe even one of those hilarious Shoebox greeting cards would suffice. Any way you can say, “Thanks for being my dad!”

Retire flags the right way this coming Flag Day

June 14 is Flag Day. On June 7, President Obama gave his proclamation for Flag Day and National Flag Week. So what are you doing to celebrate? This is a time of pride for many on the Southside as they hold events in recognition. The Indianapolis American Legion Women’s Post #438 will discuss the history of the American Flag and proper flag etiquette on June 14, 11 a.m. at the Garfield Park library, 2502 Shelby St., Indianapolis. And of course, it’s not Flag Day in Southport without the annual Southport Flag Retirement Ceremony. This 40-minute program on June 14, 7:30 p.m., at Southport Park, 6901 Derbyshire Rd., will consist of 200 flags that will be properly retired. A veteran from each branch of the military will be recognized during the program and we usually get to hear some interesting facts from Boy Scout troop leader, Duane Langreck. Make sure to attend one of these events this June 14!

Fun at St. Mark’s Funfest; Brats win sends message

There’s nothing that says summer more than a festival. That’s why we are encouraging you to find your way to the 28th annual St. Mark Funfest, June 12, 13 and 14. With food, bingo, raffles, entertainment and fellowship, all is for a good cause. Don’t miss out on the fun. Each night’s festivities get underway at 5 p.m. For more information, visit stmarkfunfest.org.

Dave Brat, the Tea Party challenger to Virginia GOP House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, won the primary Tuesday night in what was undoubtedly a major upset. Brat’s message centered on Cantor’s support of immigration legislation that would give amnesty to those here illegally. There are mixed reports out there, but Cantor spent well over a million dollars on his campaign (and had more in reserve) while Brats spent in the neighborhood of over $100,000. This is the first time since 1899 that a sitting majority leader lost an election — and again, this was the primary.

Said Brat in a story posted on Fox News: “If you go knocking door to door, you’ll know the American people think they’re in trouble. It was a miracle.”

Good to know there are some Republicans — and supporters — attempting to clean up the party. It’s also proof that a strong message means more than a heavy line of cash.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

“The most difficult thing is the decision to act, the rest is merely tenacity. The fears are paper tigers. You can do anything you decide to do. You can act to change and control your life; and the procedure, the process is its own reward.”

MOVIE REVIEW

Edge of Tomorrow...

Run of the mill, average sci-fi

Since the summer movie season started a month or so ago, we’ve already had the release of Spider-Man 2, Godzilla, the newest X-Men, and the annual awful Adam Sandler film. The last couple of weeks have produced some of the biggest films of the year and the number of blockbusters that start populating the theaters will only continue to increase. The next highly anticipated film to make its appearance is the action, sci-fi film, starring Tom Cruise, Edge of Tomorrow.

Edge of Tomorrow is the futuristic story of Major William Cage (Cruise), who inexplicably finds himself as a lowly private on the front lines fighting a race of seemingly invincible machine-like aliens. Without possessing any of the skills necessary to survive in combat, Major Cage almost immediately perishes. However, Cage regenerates hours right before entering combat. As the film continues, Cage keeps dying and waking up back in the same time loop. It’s not long after that Cage runs into Rita, an elite warrior who had a similar experience of being stuck in a loop. Cage and Rita team up to stop the aliens threatening their planet and unravel the mystery behind their shared experience.

The best way to describe the storyline is Groundhog Day meets The Matrix. The instances where Cage repeats the same scenario over and over gets a bit redundant about the fifth or sixth time it happens. Although that aspect is very integral to the story and we get various bits and pieces from different perspectives each time, it gets very tiresome, quickly. Once the story manages to progress past that, it’s a pretty run of the mill sci-fi film. The film’s biggest flaw is how the two leads are utilized. Cruise, in his second consecutive sci-fi film (Oblivion), is everything you would expect. He’s playing the same character we’ve seen him play 15-20 times before. It’s not entirely bad, but nothing new either. On the other hand, Emily Blunt, one of the best actresses working today, who plays Rita, is regulated to a yes-man role. She follows Cruise’s character without adding anything substantial. The only thing that makes her character relevant is that she has experienced being stuck in a time loop.

Edge of Tomorrow is not a terrible film, but its not a must see either. If you enjoy Cruise, a sci-fi fan, then this is your cup of tea, if not, then probably avoid this one. A 2.75 out 5.

The three-piece fish dinner includes in addition to the fish sides that could include creamy cole slaw, baked beans, French fries, corn fritters and Wheatley’s Tartar Sauce. Also on the menu is a fish sandwich and a six-piece box of fish. They offer breakfast on Friday and Saturday mornings and fried chicken on Sunday afternoons. Currently they serve Friday to Sunday but once the roadwork is completed in Wanamaker they may expand their schedule. Stay posted.

Michael Wildey discusses all things presidential at Perry Township/Southport Historical Society

By Rick Hinton

When Michael Wildey stood forefront at the May 27 Perry Township/Southport Historical Society meeting he had a lot of information to share. And the clock was ticking.

His enthusiasm was contagious as he highlighted a period of this country’s history that included the Hoosier touch. Wildey was well-versed on what makes a presidential campaign tick and the subtleties involved in achieving the ultimate ‘managers’ position that will guide and move the country forward—the office of President and Vice President. Indiana, as it turns out, has had its share of both.

Room 210 in the Perry Township Schools-Education Center was at full capacity when Wildey began his lecture with the help of his wife moving the Power-Point presentation.

Presidents with Hoosier ties were William Henry Harrison, 9th president who died from pneumonia only a month into office (1841). Harrison also has the distinction of being the oldest president to take office until Ronald Reagan in 1981; Abraham Lincoln, 16th president (1861-1865); Benjamin Harrison, 23rd Republican president (1889-1893).

Those that ran for the office of president, yet did not succeed were James Franklin Hanly, a Prohibition candidate in 1916; Eugene Victor Debs, a man who did not know how to give up and a five-time candidate for the office (1900-1920); Wendell Lewis Willkie, a Republican Party nominee in 1940. He was defeated by Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Indiana Vice Presidents included Schuyler Colfax, 17th under Ulysses S. Grant (1869-1873); Thomas Andrews Hendricks, 21st under Grover Cleveland (1885); Charles Warren Fairbanks, 26th under Theodore Roosevelt (1905-1909); Thomas R. Marshal, 28th under Woodrow Wilson (1913-1921); and finally Dan Quayle, 44th under George H.W. Bush (1989-1993).

Those that aspired to the office of Vice President (yet did not arrive) were William Hayden English, a Democratic nominee in 1880. His presidential running mate was Winfield Scott Hancock. English was ultimately responsible for the building of an opera house in downtown Indianapolis; John Worth Kern, a 1908 Democratic candidate under William Jennings Bryan; Charles W. Fairbanks again, as the 1916 running mate of Charles Evans, losing the bid in a close election.

Wildey made the observation that many of these candidates shaping a future in Washington had been successful in past military campaigns, particularly those of the Civil War era, and transitioned afterwards quite nicely into the political realm. Many, also, are buried at Crown Hill Cemetery in Indianapolis.

Ending his discussion, Wildey produced a small representation of the political memorabilia he has collected throughout the years.

Society President Diane Saari would like help with a couple of projects that are being started. They are seeking contact with those who had or have good information, about business on the Madison Avenue corridor during the 1950s and 1960s. Also, any photos or information of Perry Township schools that no longer stand, or schools presently existing that have seen additions or alterations over the years would be greatly appreciated.

Gardening, re-connecting & silent mindfulness

NUTRITION

That Nhat Hanh, Buddhist Monk, teacher, poet and Peace Activist once said:

“Food reveals our connection with the earth. Each bite contains the life of the sun and the earth. We can see and taste the entire universe in a piece of bread. Continuing our food for a few seconds before eating, and eating in mindfulness, can bring us much happiness.”

Floating through endless days of summer, opening the creaking screen door onto a verdant garden on any morning evokes big-time wonder, mystery, and promise; like the rush a mother receives when her child is born, or the wonder, mystery, and promise; like the rush a mother receives when her child is born, or the

The health benefits of being outdoors, deeply and rhythmically inhaling and exhaling fresh air while performing physical work cannot be diminished. Sages throughout the ages have gathered moral and spiritual lessons from the garden’s natural world. Gardening teaches splendor, love, natural history, enduring values, and respect for the seasons and rhythms of our own lives.

We plant and grow our own food when we are not hungry because we’re hungry for something we cannot name. Gardening teaches us about ourselves, about our interdependence with the world of nature, about the relationship between work and creativity, about our quieter and deeper states of being, and about how we might begin to mindfully discern the spiritual facts that elude us in other aspects of life.

Seeking a forced divine connection through contrived, genetically altered produce transported from China is similar to slaking one’s thirst with a Round-Up herbicide smoothie while flipping off creation. Love yourself. Treat your temple like the miracle it is.

“Gardening teaches splendor, love, natural history, enduring values, and respect for the seasons and rhythms of our own lives.”

Don't mistake these words

GRAMMAR GUY

The English language has a lot of words that look alike. Some of them are related, some have nearly identical meanings, and others just don't mean the same thing at all. The latter tends to cause confusion when speakers aren't familiar with the differences. To help you avoid a mix-up, here are a few words that share looks, but not meanings.

Contingent and contingency – You probably know the word contingency. It’s often paired with plan and means a possible event. Its adjectival form, contingent, means subject to chance or dependent on something not yet contingent (i.e. Your ability to go on vacation is contingent upon your request for days off being accepted).

The noun contingent, however, means a representative group or a quota of troops. The correct way to use it would be to say, “A contingent from the Associated Press has asked the White House for greater transparency.” Often those unfamiliar with the word will erroneously use contingency in a situation like this rather than contingent.

Levee and levy – A levee is a structure built to prevent a river from flooding nearby land. To levy is to impose a tax or draft.

Regimen and regiment – A regimen is a regulated course of diet, exercise or manner of living. A doctor might prescribe a regimen of antibiotics to counter a bacterial infection in a patient. A regiment is a military unit.

Reign and rein – This one is a little confusing. A reign is the rule of a monarch, and reins are straps used to control an animal. However, phrases like “take the reins” – to take control – and “free rein” – to be without constraints – create, I think, an artificial similarity between the two words under the brain’s label of “words that mean control.”

Desert and dessert – You’d think people would have learned this one by now, but I’ve seen it messed up everywhere from billboards to restaurant menus to websites. A dessert is the course after dinner – typically something sweet like pie or ice cream. A desert is a barren or uninhabitable place. If you’re eating a desert after dinner, you’re doing it wrong.

Southside seniors’ newest home is Aspen Trace

The Southside’s newest senior living community opened the doors to residents and visitors this week in Johnson County. Bloomington-based CarDon and Associates introduced Aspen Trace, at 3154 S. State Rd. 135 in Greenwood, to the public during an open house Sunday and to area professionals on June 10. This fourth CarDon Southside property is located south of Stones Crossing Road on SR 135 and is in close proximity to communities of Greenwood, Bargersville, Center Grove. Dr. Stephen Moore, president and chief executive officer of CarDon and Associates, said during comments prior to a ribbon cutting that they designed this community to meet the needs of the residents and the families. “This community is a different vision of the future. We have tried to bring into Bargersville something new and we have tried to give our residents a new living experience,” Moore said. This community offers specialized health services and living arrangements for up to 150 residents. Vice President Dan Moore said Aspen Trace uses a “pod concept.” “It allows us to have separate neighborhoods in one building giving us the ability to offer six different levels of care to cater to special needs groups. We have a dementia unit, a special care unit, assisted living... The pod concept has a central corridor that connects these neighborhoods,” said Dan Moore.

Grilled New York Strip

with Virginia Bacon
Brown Butter Sauce
and Balsamic Drizzle

Recipe created by Tuffy Stone

- 1 1/2 inch thick cut New York strip steak
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt and freshly cracked pepper
- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 2 strips of thick cut Virginia bacon, sliced into 1/4-inch strips
- 1/2 cup balsamic vinegar

Steak Preparation

Season both sides of steak with salt and pepper. Allow steaks to sit for 30 minutes at room temperature.

Bacon and Brown Butter Sauce

For butter sauce, take 1 tablespoon each of butter and bacon, and sauté in pan to render fat out of bacon, browning and crisping it. Drain fat from pan, leaving bacon. Add remaining 1 tablespoon of butter to sauté pan with bacon and brown butter over high heat.

Balsamic Drizzle

For balsamic drizzle, place vinegar in sauce pan and reduce to 1/4 cup or until it coats spoon.

Set up fire for direct grilling with Kingsford charcoal. While grill heats, remove steaks from refrigerator to come to room temperature.

When briquets are burning hot, pour coals into bottom grill and place grate on top. Once grill has reached 700°F, place steak on grill and cook for approximately 6 minutes, then flip. Cook approximately 6 minutes more and then flip again. Cook for about 5 minutes more, flip and cook until steak reaches an internal temp of 126°F for medium rare steak.

Allow steak to rest for 5 minutes. Spoon bacon brown butter sauce over steak and drizzle with balsamic reduction. Serve hot.

Father's Day thoughts

DEVOTIONAL

By Pastor Paul A. Kirby

"But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord. These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God. And Noah begat three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth."

~ Genesis 6:8-10

This next Sunday is Father's Day. Of course, this is a day on which the importance of fathers in the lives of children as they grow up is recognized. Christian fathers, true Christian fathers, are a rare thing.

A Godly father in the time just before the flood was a rare thing also. Noah is the only name given in his day in reference to being a man who was just and perfect and who walked with God. He had three sons that evidently were following in his footsteps. Shem, Ham, and Japheth were mentioned because of their relationship to Noah. It is never said that they had a personal relationship with God but that they were the sons of Noah who had a personal relationship with God.

Noah is the great-grandson of Enoch who was the father of Methuselah. Methuselah was the father of Lamech who was the father of Noah. Enoch walked with God and was taken by God to be in heaven with Him. Both Methuselah and Lamech lived until the year of the flood and likely perished with all of the other relatives of Noah in the flood. Why?

- Because they did not believe that Noah was building the Ark by the instructions of God and refused to enter the ark when Noah asked. The only members of Noah's family to survive the flood along with him were those who boarded the Ark when Noah said it was time. There were eight righteous souls aboard the Ark and only these survived the flood.

Noah as a father was a success and as a son, an even greater success. Just when he began to know God as a Personal Friend and Savior and just when he began to walk with Him as his great-grandfather did, we do not know. We do know that he did and that God singled him and his family out for preservation as a hope that out of this righteous family would come a righteous population of the world. He gave Adam's race one more opportunity to be His family and not a family of earthy-minded people. I might say here with a deep sadness in my heart, so many have missed this chance to be in God's family.

This Sunday (whatever Sunday is coming when you read this) you will have a chance to rise up out of bed and get the family up and to attend church as a family. What a wonderful thing and what a glorious day it will be when this happens. Why not? Be the father God intended for you to be.

By the way, every Sunday is "Father's Day." God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

Franciscan St. Francis breaks ground on Hospice House

Franciscan St. Francis Health will break ground on its Hospice House on June 12, 2:30 p.m. on its hospital’s south side campus. The project signals the realization of a two-year campaign of Franciscan Alliance Foundation St. Francis Health. Financed by privately raised funds and by matching contributions provided by the Mishawaka, Ind.-based Franciscan Alliance, the free-standing facility features private rooms, large common areas, a chapel and prayer garden and holistic care for all patients, families and loved ones. The facility and staff anticipate serving more than 600 families annually after its completion date in late 2014. Total gifts, pledges and matching funds have propelled the project to near its $10 million total construction cost. The campaign will seek to raise an additional $2 million to establish an endowment to sustain Hospice House into the future.

Light of Life to build first permanent church in Greenwood

Light of Life has amassed 4,000 volunteer hours over the past month to build their first permanent church building in Greenwood. The 7,000 square foot facility was designed by ArcDesign Architects of Indianapolis. To accomplish this build, Robin Campbell of Robin Campbell Builders came on board as general contractor to work in partnership with Builders for Christ, a volunteer group of builders associated with Light of Life's denomination. The project will be completed with 8,000 volunteer hours. Builders for Christ, primarily retired people from around the country, have created a campground of RVs at 2234 Sheek Rd. in Greenwood, the site of Life of Life's new home. Tuesday through Saturday, from 7 a.m. - 4 p.m., they will be out, constructing the building. Light of Life's church members have also contributed hundreds of hours in volunteer labor to build their church. “This is an exciting time for our congregation and the ministries we are doing here in Greenwood,” Pastor John Stelljes remarks. “Not only are we constructing our first permanent building, but we are also being built up together as Christians through this process of constructing the church together. We are eager to use this building to God's glory and the sharing of His saving message through Jesus.” Light of Life, a Lutheran church that is part of the WELS (wels.net), has gathered together in Greenwood since 2010. They originally met at the Greenwood Community Center. For the past two years, their storefront ministry center has been at 350 S. Madison Avenue. For more information, visit folgreewood.org.
